Seasonal Sociology
Edited by Tonya K. Davidson (Carleton University) and Ondine Park (MacEwan University)

Spring 2020 / 7.5 x 9.25 / paper / 368 pp / 978-1-4875-9408-4
US & CDN $39.95
Available as an ebook

Life in Canada is marked, celebrated, enjoyed, and dreaded in ways that respond very specifically to the seasons. Sociological thinking allows people to ask questions about things that are otherwise just taken-for-granted. Thinking about the seasons sociologically opens up a unique perspective for studying and understanding social life. Each chapter in this book approaches the seasons and the passage of time as a way in which to explore issues of sociological interest. The authors use seasonality as a device that can bridge, in fascinating ways, small-scale interpersonal interactions and large formal institutional structures. Including contemporary analyses of pumpkin-spice lattes, policing in schools, law and colonialism, summer cottages, seasonal-affective disorder, New Year’s resolutions, and Vaisakhi celebrations, Seasonal Sociology offers provocative, new ways for thinking about the nature our collective lives.

INSTRUCTOR RESOURCES
- Featuring learning objectives at the beginning of each chapter, as well as tutorial activities, and a test bank.
This unique and innovative text provides undergraduate students with tools to think sociologically through the lens of everyday life. Normative social organization and taken for granted beliefs and actions are exposed as key mechanisms of power and social inequality in western societies today. By “unpacking the centre” students are encouraged to turn their social worlds inside out and explore alternatives to the dominant social order. Each chapter includes intriguing exercises, study questions, and key terms that link to the volume’s comprehensive glossary.

The Promise of Sociology: Classical Approaches to Contemporary Society, Second Edition
Rob Beamish (Queen's University)

2016 / 6 x 9 / paper / 416 pp / 978-1-4426-3404-6
US & CDN $51.00
Available as an ebook

The second edition of this award-winning book has been substantially revised, including more direct connections between Generation Z, Mills’s concept of the sociological imagination, and the difficulties students face in higher education today. The section on popular culture contains a new chapter on the history of popular music from early rock ‘n’ roll to contemporary pop and R&B. New chapter objectives, end-of-chapter review and reflection questions, key terms, and a glossary, as well as an instructor’s manual and test bank make this book even more user-friendly.

The Myth of the Age of Entitlement: Millennials, Austerity, and Hope
James Cairns (Wilfrid Laurier University, Brantford)

2017 / 6 x 9 / paper / 208 pp / 978-1-4426-3637-8
US & CDN $27.95
Available as an ebook

Scholars and pundits declare that millennials expect special treatment, do whatever they feel like, and think they deserve to have things handed to them. In this book, Cairns peels back the layers of the entitlement myth, exposing its faults and arguing that the majority of millennials are actually disentitled, facing bleak economic prospects and potential ecological disaster. Providing insights from millennials rarely profiled in the mainstream media, Cairns offers a different understanding of entitlement as a fundamental concept for realizing economic and environmental justice.

Kickstarting Your Academic Career: Skills to Succeed in the Social Sciences
Robert L. Ostergard, Jr. and Stacy B. Fisher (both at University of Nevada, Reno)

2017 / 5.5 x 8.5 / paper / 144 pp / 978-1-4426-3561-6
US & CDN $17.95
Available as an ebook

Kickstarting Your Academic Career is a primer on the common scholastic demands that social sciences students face upon entering college or university. Based on the challenges that instructors most often find students need help with, the authors offer practical advice and tips on topics such as how to communicate with instructors, take notes, read a textbook, research and write papers, and write successful exams. The succinct writing and clear organization make this an essential reference for first-year students as they encounter post-secondary work for the first time.

“Garner and Hancock have given us something new: a reader that resists oversimplification and shows students the living relationships between classical and contemporary theory. As a bonus, pedagogical materials at the end of each chapter help instructors to help their students become a part of these theoretical dialogues.”

— David Yamane, Wake Forest University

The third edition of this popular reader reflects considerable changes. With over seventy readings representing a wide diversity of theorists, it offers a breadth of coverage not available in other collections. The framework for understanding theory as a set of conversations over time is maintained and deepened, with a focus on key transitional theorists who helped pave the way from classical to contemporary theory. New contextual and biographical materials surround the primary readings, and each chapter includes a study guide with key terms, discussion questions, and innovative classroom exercises.

KEY FEATURES OF THE THIRD EDITION

- New format and design
- Completely reorganized for easier use in the classroom
- New chapters on race, gender, and culture
- New section on "transitional giants" in the history of social theory
- Significantly more readings
- Well-curated selections
- New support materials surrounding each reading, including introductions, author biographies, key terms, links to other theorists, discussion questions, and activities

Capitalism and Classical Social Theory, Third Edition

John Bratton (Edinburgh University) and David Denham (University of Wolverhampton)

2019 / 6 x 9 / paper / 424 pp / 978-1-4875-8818-2
US & CDN $54.95
Available as an ebook

Written specifically for one-semester courses, Capitalism and Classical Social Theory offers solid coverage of the classical triumvirate (Marx, Durkheim, and Weber), but also extends the canon strategically to include early female theorists and the writings of Du Bois. In the third edition, the authors replace a discussion of Simmel with a chapter on George Herbert Mead. The text has been updated and revised throughout, with a new conclusion focusing on the changing socio-economic context of the post-Trump, post-Brexit world and the rise of populist discourse and economic and environmental uncertainty.

Alan Sears (Ryerson University) and James Cairns (Wilfrid Laurier University, Brantford)

2015 / 5.5 x 8.5 / paper / 240 pp / 978-1-4426-0077-5
US & CDN $27.95
Available as an ebook

This highly original and compelling book offers an introduction to the art and science of social inquiry, including the theoretical and methodological frameworks that support that inquiry. The third edition offers coverage of post-modernism and Indigenous ways of knowing, as well as a discussion of the research process and how to communicate arguments effectively. The result is a book that blends the best of earlier editions with updates that provide a strong foundation in critical thinking, rooted in the social sciences but relevant across disciplines.

Practicing Ethnography: A Student Guide to Method and Methodology

Edited by Lynda Mannik (York University) and Karen McGarry (McMaster University)

2017 / 6 x 9 / paper / 288 pp / 978-1-4875-9312-4
US & CDN $38.95
Available as an ebook

Practicing Ethnography offers a theoretically informed guide to ethnographic methods that is also practical in approach, and reflects the challenges and concerns of contemporary ethnography. Students draw from vignettes situated within North America to learn how various methods work in the real world, and how ethnography informs contemporary theory. Exercises and assignments encourage students to practice these methods in a familiar context, and a sustained focus on visual methodologies offers coverage not found in other books. The result is a text that discusses both practical and theoretical issues in contemporary ethnography while equipping students with a set of transferable skills.

Social Justice and Israel/Palestine: Foundational and Contemporary Debates

Edited by Aaron J. Hahn Tapper (University of San Francisco) and Mira Sucharov (Carleton University)

2019 / 6 x 9 / paper / 272 pp / 978-1-4875-8806-9
US & CDN $39.95
Available as an ebook

This book critically assesses a series of complex and topical debates helping students to make sense of the politics surrounding the Israeli-Palestinian relationship. Each chapter considers one topic, represented by two or three essays offered in conversation with one another. Together, these essays advance different perspectives; in some cases they are complementary and in others they are oppositional. Topics include scholarly and activist interpretations of narratives in the context of Israel/Palestine; the concept of self-determination for Jewish Israelis and Palestinians; the debate over settler-colonialism; and questions surrounding Jewish and Palestinian refugees and the impact of displacement, among others.

Learning Activism: The Intellectual Life of Contemporary Social Movements

Aziz Choudry (McGill University)

2015 / 6 x 9 / paper / 216 pp / 978-1-4426-0790-3
US & CDN $30.95
Available as an ebook

Learning Activism is designed to encourage a deeper engagement with the intellectual life of activists who organize for social, political, and ecological justice. Drawing on his own personal experiences in activism, and from a variety of social movements, Choudry suggests that these movements can best be understood if we engage with the learning, knowledge, debates, and theorizing that goes on within them. Examples include anti-colonial organizing in the Asia-Pacific, migrant worker struggles in Canada, and the Quebec student strike.

A Civil Society? surveys the main approaches to the study of group politics in Canada, with a strong comparative perspective. Unique to this brief and accessible text is a comprehensive theoretical framework that helps students evaluate policy areas surveyed in the book, while also pointing them toward future study.

This new edition opens with a discussion of power, political institutions, and identity. It goes on to explore group and social movement activity across a range of institutions including the House of Commons, the bureaucracy, and the courts as well as mobilization through social media and the electoral system. Throughout, Smith systematically integrates consideration of the role of gender, racialization, and indigeneity in contemporary Canadian group and movement politics.

Group Politics and Social Movements in Canada explores a wide range of organized group and social movement activity in Canadian politics. Particularly distinctive is the inclusion of Quebec nationalism and Indigenous politics. Many other areas of collective activity are also included: the Occupy movement and anti-poverty organizing; disability; lesbian and gay politics; feminism; farmers and organized interests in agriculture; Christian evangelical groups; environment; and health movements.

Each chapter provides an overview of the group or movement along with an account of its main networks and organizations, strategies, goals, successes, and failures.

Securitized Citizens: Canadian Muslims’ Experiences of Race Relations and Identity Formation Post-9/11

Baljit Nagra (University of Ottawa)

2017 / 6 x 9 / paper / 272 pp / 978-1-4426-2866-3

US & CDN $28.95

Available as an ebook

In Securitized Citizens, Baljit Nagra explores the ideas that dominant groups and institutions try to impose on young Canadian Muslims, and how young Canadian Muslims in turn contest and reconceptualize these ideas. Based on in-depth interviews with young Muslims in Vancouver and Toronto, her analysis reveals how this group experiences national belonging and exclusion, how they view their cultural and religious identity, and what their experiences tell us about contemporary Canadian citizenship.
This book offers a behavioural perspective on the integration of immigrants, describing and analyzing the relationships that immigrants develop with politics in their host countries. The chapters provide both unique national insights and a comparative perspective on the national case studies, while the editor offers a framework within which to understand these examples.

In this book, Mize and Swords dissect the social relations that define how corporations, consumers, and states involve Mexican immigrant laborers in the politics of production and consumption. The result is a comprehensive and contemporary look at the increasingly important role that Mexican immigrants play in the North American economy.

The Making of the Mosaic examines the ideas, interests, institutions, and rhetoric that have shaped Canada’s immigration history. Beginning with the pre-Confederation period, the authors interpret major episodes such as the massive deportations of the WWI and Depression eras, Japanese-Canadian internment camps during WWII, and immigration in a post-9/11 world.

Issues of gender roles, intersectionality, and privilege are explored in seven beautifully illustrated graphic vignettes. Each vignette highlights unique moments and challenges in the struggle for feminist social justice. Brief background information provides context for the uninitiated, and further readings are suggested. Finally, carefully crafted discussion questions help readers probe the key points in each narrative while connecting specific stories to more general concepts in gender studies and feminist theory.

In this lively narrative, newcomers to women’s and gender studies explore a refreshing take on a subject matter often loaded with assumptions. Feminist theories are viewed through the critical intersections of race, class, sexuality, age, and ability, and are embedded in the experiences of everyday life, allowing Bromley to engage students in doing theory, in making sense of concepts like “power” and “privilege,” and in effecting social change. The book contains a variety of pedagogical devices, including provocative images, discussion questions, and classroom activities, to help cultivate critical thinking.

Violence against women is usually framed as an issue of interpersonal violence perpetuated by men. While domestic violence and sexual assault are significant social problems, such a narrow framing obscures the diversity of women’s experience, fails to illuminate the role social structures play, and excludes discussions of workplace and state violence. By drawing on a range of theoretical traditions emerging from feminism, criminology, and sociology, Women and Gendered Violence in Canada significantly expands the conversation on violence against women.

The first section of the book develops the conceptual and contextual framework that informs the remainder of the text, and the following three sections are organized around types of victimization: interpersonal, labour site, and state. Each chapter ends with lists of suggested activities, and first-person narratives are integrated throughout to personalize the material and issues being examined.

Getting Past ‘the Pimp’: Management in the Sex Industry
Edited by Chris Bruckert and Colette Parent (both at University of Ottawa)

2018 / 6 x 9 / paper / 185 pp / 978-1-4875-2249-0
US & CDN $24.95
Available as an ebook

Addressing the function of third parties in the sex industry, Getting Past ‘the Pimp’ incorporates solid empirical evidence – including documentary analysis and interviews with third parties and sex workers – to unpack the roles and relationships of third parties in three main sectors: incall/outcall, stripping, and street-based prostitution. Never idealizing sex work, the authors present the major issues that both sex workers and third parties face as they navigate this stigmatized and criminalized area.

Responding to Human Trafficking: Dispossession, Colonial Violence, and Resistance among Indigenous and Racialized Women
Julie Kaye (University of Saskatchewan)

2017 / 6 x 9 / paper / 280 pp / 978-1-4875-2161-5
US & CDN $30.95
Available as an ebook

This is the first book to critically examine responses to the growing issue of human trafficking in Canada. The author challenges the separation of trafficking debates into international versus domestic emphases and explores the tangled ways in which anti-trafficking policies reflect and reinforce the settler-colonial nation-building project of Canada. In doing so, Kaye reveals how some anti-trafficking measures create additional harms for the individuals they are trying to protect, particularly migrant and Indigenous women.

The Colonial Problem: An Indigenous Perspective on Crime and Injustice in Canada
Lisa Monchalin (Kwantlen Polytechnic University)

2016 / 6 x 9 / paper / 448 pp / 978-1-4426-0662-3
US & CDN $51.00
Available as an ebook

In The Colonial Problem, Lisa Monchalin challenges the myth of the “Indian problem” and encourages students to view the crimes and injustices affecting Indigenous peoples from a more culturally aware position. She analyzes the consequences of assimilation policies, dishonoured treaty agreements, manipulative legislation, and systematic racism, arguing that the overrepresentation of Indigenous peoples in the Canadian criminal justice system is not an Indian problem but a colonial one.

Dying from Improvement: Inquests and Inquiries into Indigenous Deaths in Custody
Sherene H. Razack (Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, University of Toronto)

2015 / 6 x 9 / paper / 328 pp / 978-1-4426-2891-5
US & CDN $35.95
Available as an ebook

In Dying from Improvement, Sherene H. Razack argues that, amidst systematic state violence against Indigenous people, inquiries and inquests serve to obscure the violence of ongoing settler colonialism under the guise of benevolent concern. They tell settler society that it is caring and compassionate – even as the incarceration rate of Indigenous men and women increases and the number of those who die in custody rises.
